PET WASTE POLLUTES OUR WATERS

What You Can Do to Help Protect Our Water from Contamination by Pet Waste

Clean and plentiful water is important to our families, our environment, our economy and our quality of life but did you know that animal waste from pets can pollute our waters? When left on the ground, pet waste is washed by rain and melting snow and ice into storm drains that carry it to our rivers, lakes, the ocean and drinking water. Animal waste contains a high concentration of nutrients, as well as bacteria and disease-causing microorganisms that can cause problems.

Pet owners or anyone who walks pets must properly dispose of any waste by picking it up, wrapping it and either placing it in the trash or flushing it unwrapped down the toilet All pet owners are required to immediately and properly dispose of their pet's solid waste deposited on any property, public or private, not owned or occupied by that person. Any owner or keeper who requires the use of a disability assistance animal shall be exempt.

Please obey the law and help keep Old Tappan and our waters clean.

There are quite a few misconceptions out there about picking up dog poop, and they need to be addressed. Picking up after your dog is an important task for all responsible pet owners. The following are just 4 reasons why it is important to clean up after your pet.

Common Courtesy: Many things can ruin your day, but stepping in a steaming pile is definitely high on the list. When you take your pet off of your property, you are entering public shared space. Your dog's waste is your mess and it is your duty as responsible pet owner to ensure that you pick up after your pets.

It's Just Poop, It's Natural Like Cows, It's Fertilizer: This is not true – not all piles of poop are created equal. Cow manure has a very different make up because their digestive systems, and diets are very different. Cows are herbivores, where as dogs are omnivores, and their diets are very high in protein. Dog waste is actually so high in nitrogen and phosphorus that it can have the opposite effect of fertilizer. It can actually burn your lawn if you don't pick it up. It also causes all sorts of issues for local watersheds.

Disease Causing Bacteria and Parasites – Harmful For Humans and Dogs Dog waste is even more full of disease causing bacteria and parasites than other types of waste. These bacteria and parasites are harmful to humans and spread disease to other dogs. Dog waste is full of E.coli, salmonella and is a common carrier of the following: Worms (several types), Parvovirus, Coronavirus, Giardiasis, Salmonellosis, Cryptosporidiosis, and Campylobacteriosis. These bacteria and parasites can actually linger in the soil for years. If you don't pick up after your dog, you are putting other people and other dogs at risk of getting sick.

It Will Just Wash Away and Be Gone Soon! Another common misconception is that if you don't pick it up, it will quickly break down or wash away—however this is not the case with dog poop. In fact, dog waste can take as long as a year to naturally break down. Especially since we live in a climate with a colder winter season. So even if you leave the poop on the ground and it does eventually break down, all of those bacteria and parasites will be left to linger there for several more years.
